Symbol on electrical and electronic equipment

This crossed-out trashcan means that electrical and electronic equipment is no household waste. You have to hand over the old devices at a collection point. Before handing in, you have to dispose of old batteries and accumulators that are not enclosed in the old device.

Return options

As an end-user, when you purchase a new device, you can return your old device (which essentially fulfills the same function as the new one you purchased) for disposal at no charge. Small appliances where no external dimensions are greater than 25 cm can be dispensed regardless of the purchase of a new appliance in normal household quantities.
